

Fluid-structure Interaction Modeling For Wind Energy Harvesting In A Venturi Tube.

Élias KHARBOUCHE¹, Roger DELATTRE¹, Jean-Pierre NIKOLOVSKI², Sylvain BLAYAC¹

¹Mines Saint-Étienne, Gardanne, France

²CEA Tech, Centre CMP, France

Abstract

This study models the energy harvesting reached from an air flow transportation through the flapping of a cantilever polymer flag. The mechanical resonance of the flag is created by a Venturi channel. The flag is charged by triboelectrification and its flapping between two electrodes induces an electrical current in a load. Our model is based on the Fluid-Structure Interaction (FSI) Multiphysics involving solid and fluid mechanics.